SUMMARY

The Company's financial year to March 31, 2022 is best seen as a year of two halves, with the Company ending the year with an entirely different Board than with which it started. This transition has been documented in previous Quarterly reports (https://www.nzx.com/announcements/389362). The new Board initially found itself occupied with answering regulatory queries pertaining to the previous Board's activities and aspects of governance during a tumultuous period in October 2021, that culminated in the NZX releasing its findings in the following (https://www.nzx.com/regulation/nzx-rules-guidance). The Board then focused its energy on developing а Strategic Plan that was released to the Market April 2022 in (https://www.nzx.com/announcements/391051) which sees the Company's core asset, the Talisman mine being brought into production.

The Board also undertook a thorough review of the Vanuatu exploration permit purchase and found itself bound to complete the deal. The pandemic, alongside the Company's financial position, has made it impossible to make progress on the prospect, but the Board will refocus upon it once the implementation of the Strategic Plan and associated proposed Convertible Debt Security (https://www.nzx.com/announcements/391051) are finalised.
